AN ANIMAL HUNTER'S EXPERIENCES.

"THE KING COBRA WILL ATTACK ANYTHING."

DECLARES THAT TIGERS ARE HAPPIER IN THE ZOO THAN IN JUNGLE.

A big game hunter, whose motto is "catch 'em alive," is at present staying in Singapore in the person of Mr. Frank Buck, of San Francisco. Mr. Buck, who has spent the greater part of his life in pursuit of animals, only recently killed his first. During his career he has trapped and exported hundreds of wild animals, including elephants, rhinos, tigers, lions, leopards, monkeys of all classes, snakes etc., and thousands of birds. In his search for these he visited most of the jungles of the world, but mainly the Malay Archipelago and India.

Interviewed by a representative of the Straits Times, Mr. Buck said he was not in Malaysia this time with the object of collecting animals, but was engaged in making a talking picture of the book of his life, "Bring 'Em Alive," which included the most exciting of his experiences in search of game. In order to make this picture, of course, he had to go out into the jungle and capture the animals, only the best of which he was keeping.

"What is the narrowest escape you have had in your life with wild animals?" asked our representative. "I think it was about eight or ten years ago, in East Coast Road, with a king cobra," replied Mr. Buck. "This great snake, a tremendous length, was one of the biggest and best specimens I had ever caught. One day it got loose, and cornered me in a little wooden shed. Once it struck and I jumped aside, and then I found myself right in the far corner of the shed with the king cobra making ready to strike a second time. It reared up, and was just going to dart, when I quickly ripped off my coat, and fell forward on to the beast. It was touch and go, and any minute I expected feeling its fangs go into my chest, but luckily I had enveloped the head in my coat, I had got him then, and we put him back in his cage."

Not as Bad as Painted.

Mr. Buck went on to explain that wild animals were not really as bad as they were painted. One heard people talk of man-eating tigers, and other ferocious animals, but in many cases these terrors of the jungle were frightened of man, and nine times out of ten would scuttle out of the way of a human being. That was generally the case, but the one exception was a king cobra. A more cruel and more ferocious beast he had never in his lengthy experience come across. It would attack anything or anybody, and with such ferocity that the cobra nearly always came off best.

"What is the difference between a man-eating tiger and an ordinary tiger?" was the next query. "That is difficult to say," replied Mr. Buck. "There is little difference, but the manner in which a tiger becomes a man-eater is fairly certain. After an animal has had an injury which prevents it getting about as before, and knocking down animals with which he has got to fight to overcome for his food, he has to go hungry probably for a long time. He then comes across a native, and knocks him down and has a meal. After that he always goes for human flesh whenever he can get it.

ROUND THE SHOPS.

[By "EVE"]

Lane, Crawford.—The new dresses are undeniably designed to make you look your loveliest, but they do ask for consideration so far as underwear is concerned. Bunchy elastic and heavy pleats won't give a smooth silhouette under a moulded "Princess" frock. Lane, Crawford's have just unpacked a very delightful consignment of undies. Knickers, made on a fitted yoke, are made very short, and the most that is permitted for trimming on some are simple tuckings and bindings. Most of the knickers are in sets, with "brassieres" to match. Among the collection I was shown there were knickers in peach crêpe de chine with lace on the flap, appliqued and bound in satin of the same colour. Sports shorts which are, perhaps, the most delightful among this collection are in white crêpe de chine, trimmed with narrow bands of black satin, while zoru lace is used in narrow and wide effects on toddlers and petticoats with beautiful hand-made embroidery. Slips, too, are elaborate and are shaped and snugly fitted. If you boast of being modern, you've taken to the lounging suits of which some striking models are seen.

BACK TO 1860.

This sketch from Paris shows a hat and gloves reminiscent of 1860. The hat is of fine straw in a tomato red colour. One side comes low down over the ear and eye. The trimming is of frilled black feathers.

The gloves of "resille de al," a black net material, have insertions of pleated muslin to match the collar.

The Dolly Vardon Hat Shop.—This week a great removal sale is being held and all models are marked at half price. So, if you want value for your money in these hard times, you should not miss these few days' sale at The Dolly Vardon Hat Shop. A hat to make every woman beautiful, that is the task which fashion has set herself this season, and how well she has succeeded can be seen by a visit to this delightful hat shop. The task mentioned might seem impossible of achievement if it were not that fashion sets limit neither on size nor shape. Among the varied collection of "Catalina" and "Mayfair" models, there are hats, so light, and so squashy; there are, too, models with delightful becoming brims, and in between these two extremes are other models, pert, sedate, grave and gay, to suit the features and temperaments of every kind of woman.

Some very charming flowered voile afternoon dresses are also seen here. Several frocks are moulded in the "Princess" silhouette and tucking and frills add interest and charm to these delightful new models. What could be more charming or lovely on a hot summer evening than one of these chic little sleeveless frocks of fashionable flowered voile from The Dolly Vardon Hat Shop?

The Felix Hat Shop.—In order to keep their ever changing stock new and foremost, for exclusive model millinery and gowns, Felix are determined to move every one of their large stocks of summer hats and gowns at a great sacrifice in price. There are afternoon and evening gowns in georgette, organdie and silk-crepe. Among the many good things it is difficult to pick and choose, but I noticed a very charming evening model of georgette in tomato red; the skirt is composed of two wide frills on a plain bodice finished with a V-neck, the back being fitted with a half cape which comes down as far as the waist. One who needs a more tailored outfit will find what she wants in suits of light-weight knitted silks; these are in two and three pieces, many of which are richly embroidered in flower designs, while others are trimmed with bands of contrasting colours. And on no account forget the millinery.

What woman wants to miss the chance of buying a smart hat for only a few dollars? There are lovely models in Baku and Bangkok, dyed in many different shades, chip straws in many sports models and large floppy crinolines suitable for bridesmaid or garden party wear.

Gordon's.—This week Gordon's are showing their latest consignment of shoes in linen and canvas in white, natural and beige. Patched shoes, often of two colours, as well as two materials, are inundating the market. A one strap model in natural linen is seen at Gordon's, edged with beige kid. On another model, a court shoe of natural linen has embroidered flowers in blue and two shades of brown. The combination of leather and lizard is quite the season's favourite while dark beige is seen trimmed with lizard and black kid with gray lizard. The sandal shoes appear with great success and are counted among the most popular shoe models. Lizard is used on two very smart models; one in red with fancy strappings, the other a plain one-strap in green. White, a very much used summer colour, is seen in a suede model, which is covered all over with a punch-work design.

Whiteaway's.—The great Summer Sale at Whiteaway's is in full swing and everything in all departments is marked down; I am even told that many articles are marked very much below cost value. Youngsters' clothes look particularly interesting at the moment. These lucky little people never seem to have to wait for their new fashions as we do; there are always new ideas to be picked up for them, even at times like the present when our wardrobe are at a standstill, waiting for the new season's styles. This fact is borne out at Whiteaway's

WOMAN'S CROWNING GLORY.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR HAIR IN GOOD CONDITION.

If your hair is shining and healthy looking it does not greatly matter whether it is worn long or short. The condition of the hair is more important than the style of hair-dressing, and in this series it is the quality of the locks we aim to improve. Style is to personal
a thing to be discussed generally.

Valuable Massage.

If you have time to shampoo your hair at home do so; it is always worth while. Very good shampoo powders can be bought to suit all types of hair and the sales-
women or chemists are always prepared to give advice as to the right kind to use.

About two hours before the shampoo dip the tips of the fingers in warm olive oil and rub the scalp
with it, moving the skin of the head
in a rotary movement. Keep the hair free from the oil as much as possible, as it is the scalp that benefits from this warm oil treatment, not the hair.

An excellent shampoo can be made by filling a basin with hot water and standing in it a stone
jar containing a pound of soft
green soap and half pint of methy-lated spirit. Be careful not to stand this mixture near a flame.
When it is dissolved and you have allowed about two hours for the
olive oil to penetrate the scalp, wet
the head with hot water, pour a little of the soap mixture over and give the head a good brisk rubbing.
Rinse off with hot water, then repeat the shampoo. When you feel it is thoroughly cleansed and invigorated by rubbing, rinse every particle of soap out, taking two or three waters if necessary. Finally,
rinse with the juice of a lemon
or half a cupful of vinegar, after which a jug of tepid water should be poured over. Dry by rubbing with hot towels.

Promoting Growth.

There is no better shampoo for making the hair grow than this;
and if there has been trouble with
thin or falling hair this shampoo
should be given every week without fail. A friend of mine, after a severe attack of influenza, found her hair coming out in great patches. She spent pounds, going from one doctor to another without success. Then she tried the above shampoo without expecting much improvement; but a month or two
the bare patches had covered themselves with a fresh growth, and in a short time she had a glorious
head of shining hair.

For Blonde Hair.

The blonde may give her hair a camomile rinse. This can be made at home by soaking a handful of camomile flowers in hot water.
Leave it for some time, then, after straining the liquid, pour it over the hair. Excellent camomile shampoo powders can also be bought.
The brunette will benefit by a rosemary rinse. Dry salt rubbed into the scalp makes the hair healthy,
while alcohol stimulates its growth.
If the hairs showing at the back of the neck are very dark or if there is an appearance of downy growth
on the skin or superfluous hair, dab
diluted peroxide of hydrogen on
and allow to remain.

whereupon it put forth pink blossoms,
and later on green leaves, as if
responding to his loving touch.
Thus was seen the first almond-blossom tree, and the name Phyllis
was henceforth associated with it.

HEALTH IN THE HOME.

THE VALUE—AND DANGERS OF SUNBURN.

Undoubtedly plenty of sunlight is extremely good for one—apart from actual sunburning; it is important for growing children in preventing rickets, and for people convalescing from recent illnesses. But rapid sunburning following only one or two exposures is probably most valuable in its psychological effect;
to see oneself every morning looking brown in the looking-glass gives
one confidence in one's health;
moreover a well bronzed skin is not entirely unflattering to its owner.

But these quick sunburns are not without risk both to one's appearance and one's health. Instead of returning brown and handsome
one may come home blistered and peeling. To severe and sudden burning may result a few hours later in severe chills,
high temperature, headache, and vomiting; and I have seen a patient with mild diabetes fall into severe diabetic coma following sunburn. The reason for these symptoms is the absorption of poisonous substances from a widespread area
of burned, dead skin, exactly the same thing as occurs after a severe burn from fire.

Those who are susceptible to sunburn should be very careful not to expose themselves and to wear a broad brim hat. Otherwise one should expose oneself at first for only a short period and then gradually increase the length of ex-posure. A very good precaution to take—particularly if you are going to lie in the sun after bathing—is to first smear yourself with olive oil. In this way you may be able to get brown fairly quickly with little risk of blistering. Also after exposure to sun make a point of applying cold cream to the exposed parts on going to bed.

DO YOU KNOW?

Precipitated chalk rubbed on the palm of the hand makes a good nail polish.

A door will not stick if both the door and door-post are polished
with floor polish.

Crocodile shoes which are stained can be restored by rubbing lightly with olive oil.

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER.

IS YOUR NAME HERE?

Nadine.—This beautiful title is
the French form of the old Russian,
or Slavonic name, "Nadezda",
signifying "Hope". It is pronounced Nad-ee-ne. It formed one of the trio of very popular names
relating to the trinity of Christian graces, Vera (Faith), Nadezda (Hope), and Lyubov (Love).
Modern Russia spells them to-day
as Vera, Nadia and Lyubov. In Serbia it usually takes the form of Nada or Nadan.

Phyllis is one of those pastoral names, which, like Sylvia, occur so often in sonnets and lyrics. It is derived from the Greek "Phuo",
to grow, or flourish; hence it de-
notes anything verdant or fruitful,
and is often explained as "a leaf".
A prettier meaning is "Graceful
as a willow wand," taking it from the word Phyllis, a species of willow tree. The name first occurs in the story of the young Thracian
Queen who fell in love with Demophoon, son of King Theseus, when he paid a visit to her country.
Their love was mutual, and when he was compelled to return to his country on urgent matters, of State he vowed to come back to wed
her within a few weeks. But he was detained long, long beyond that period, and poor Phyllis, believing his love had changed, and she would see him no more, threw herself into the sea and was drowned. A splendid tomb was raised over her place of burial, and from
it grew up a tree, tall and slim,
but devoid of leaves. Shortly afterwards Demophoon returned, and heart-broken at Phyllis' death,
rushed to the tree and embraced it.

ORIGINS OF WELL-KNOWN PHRASES.

BLARNEY.

The ancient Castle of Blarney in Ireland was once besieged by English soldiers under the command of the Earl of Totness. After arranging terms of surrender with the commander of the Castle, the Earl was made to wait for their fulfilment day after day, being bamboozled by soft speeches.

News of this delay came to England, where Queen Elizabeth's Ministers soon referred to the Earl in jesting terms, and where he was looked upon generally as the dupe
of the Lord of Blarney.

Blarney now refers to both jests
and untruths, while the phrase
"kissing the Blarney Stone" (the Blarney Stone is a famous relic of the Castle) denotes flattery and smooth, deceitful words.

THE GOLDEN COBBLER.

THE COBBLER'S LESSON.

(Conclusion.)

There was no pity for the poor
and needy left in the Golden Cobbler's selfish heart. Instead of
showing kindness, he flew into a rage. To think that any one should
ask him to do such humble work!
"How dare you speak to me thus,
you rogue! he cried out, in angry
tones. "Surely you can see that
low and vulgar folk like you have
naught to do with a grand lord
like me! Go! Mend your horrid
shoes yourself, and be off, or I
will call my serving-men to drive
you from my sight with sticks!"
But no sooner were these unkind
words spoken, then a dreadful noise
was heard—mighty rushing wind
that knocked the rain and hoastful
Golden Cobbler to the ground, flat
upon his face.

Next moment a dazzling golden
light began to shine on all around.
The beggar, had, vanished, and
where he had lately stood was now
seen the Fairy of Rewards. She held in her hands the golden shoes which
had been worn so long by the Cobbler, and in a sad voice she said: "Oh Cobbler, although I

grieve to take away your golden
shoes, I cannot let you have my
magic gift another day. For,
though I told you to use your
riches well, you have let pride and
selfishness drive all the kindness out
of your heart.

"As a beggar-man, so poor and
old, I tried you once again, and
alas, found you selfish and vain.
So, since golden shoes and riches
have been but a snare, you must
now give them up!" With these words, the fairy and the magic
shoes vanished, and the golden light
died away. When the Cobbler rose
from the ground, he found that
his golden palace and all his riches
had gone too! And as he stared at his shodden feet, his wife and daughter ran to him, weeping with
rage and scolding him again, as
in the old days.

The news was quickly known to
all. When the gay young Prince
was told, he sent a messenger at once to say that he really could
not now wed with Sulkianna, since
her father's magic wealth had gone! And so the Cobbler, with
his wife and daughter, went back
to dwell once more in the humble
hut which had been their home
before.

Let us hope they learnt their
lesson—that love and kindness bring
true happiness, not riches and
power. At any rate they never again had the chance to wear the
magic shoes—and all because they
would not use a golden gift aright.
(The End.)

THE GOLDEN COBBLER.

THE COBBLER'S LESSON.

(Conclusion.)

There was no pity for the poor
and needy left in the Golden Cobbler's selfish heart. Instead of
showing kindness, he flew into a
rage. To think that any one should
ask him to do such humble work!
"How dare you speak to me thus,
you rogue!" he cried out, in angry
tones. "Surely you can see that
low and vulgar folk like you have
naught to do with a grand lord
like me? Go! Mend your horrid
shoes yourself, and be off, or I
will call my serving-men to drive
you from my sight with sticks!"
But no sooner were these unkind
words spoken, than a dreadful noise
was heard—mighty rushing wind
that knocked the yain and beautiful
Golden Cobbler to the ground, flat
upon his face.

Next moment a dazzling golden
light began to shine all around!
The beggar had vanished, and
where he had lately stood was now
seen the Fairy of Reward. She held
in her hands the golden shoes which
had been worn so long by the Cobbler, and his sad voice she
said, "Oh Cobbler, although I

grieve to take away your golden
shoes, I cannot let you have my
magic gift another day. For,
though I told you to use your
riches well, you have let pride and
selfishness drive all the kindness out
of your heart.

"As a beggar-man, so poor and
old, I tried you once again, and
alas, found you selfish and vain.
So, since golden shoes and riches
have been but a snare, you must
now give them up!" With these words, the fairy and the magic
shoes vanished, and the golden light
died away. When the Cobbler rose
from the ground, he found that
his golden palace and all his riches
had gone too! And as he stared
at his shoeless feet, his wife and
daughter ran to him, weeping with
rage and scolding him again, as
in the old days.

The news was quickly known to
all. When the gay young Prince
was told, he sent a messenger to
once to say that he really could
not now wed with Sulkinnia, since
her father's magic wealth had
gone! And so the Cobbler, with
his wife and daughter, went back
to dwell once more in the humble
before.

Let us hope they learnt their
lesson—that love and kindness bring
true happiness, not riches and
power. At any rate they never
again had the chance to wear the
magic shoes—and all because they
would not use a golden gift aright.

AN ANIMAL HUNTER'S EXPERIENCES.

Better Off in the Zoo.

"Do you think it is cruel to confine wild beasts, who are used to roaming the jungles free, to zoos and menageries?" was another question that Mr. Buck was asked. "No," was his quick reply. "I think they are better off in zoos. Of course, in circuses, where they are confined to small cages, and are shifted about periodically, well, they have a rough time. That is a rough job for man or beast, but in a permanent zoo they are better off. Just compare a 15-year old tiger in the jungle and one in the zoo. He is a decrepit old-man tiger in the jungle, with ticks behind his ears, scars all over him, and a proper down-and-out looking tramp, whereas the one in the zoo will be a beautiful specimen, well fed, have a good, clean coat, and will be a healthy looking beast. The life of a tiger in the jungle is at the most, 20 to 25 years, while it is much longer in the zoo."

Mr. Buck went on to say that he considered that the action of the London Zoological Society establishing a big zoo at Whipsnade, was a wonderful idea. They had certainly done a very humane thing. "But the British are most humane," went on Mr. Buck. "In my opinion the British people are the greatest race of animal and bird lovers in the world. They show greater interest in animal and bird life than any other people. There are a greater percentage of people in Great Britain who love animals and birds, and make a study of them as their hobby than in any other country. For instance, the London Zoo is the best patronized in the world. America is growing that way, but has a long way to go to catch up to Great Britain."

His First Kill—And Why.

That his present task is not without its dangers can be understood from the following incident which occurred but a few days ago, when Mr. Buck said he shot and killed a wild animal for the first time in his life. He had caught a lovely specimen of a tiger, he said, but unfortunately it got away, and his men sent for him. He was told it was in the brush, so he got a powerful flare and went after it. The tiger came for him at first, but seeing the flare, turned and went back into the brush. Mr. Buck followed, but before he knew where he was the tiger was coming behind him.

"I knew I was safe, because if he charged me, I could stick the flare in his face, which would stop any of his tricks. I heard a roar, and out he came at me from behind. I turned round, and tried to get out of the way, but stumbled and fell full length. He jumped almost on top of me, but on account of the flare he got excited and his spring was inaccurate, therefore he just missed me. Again he went into the brush. I thought I had better go and get my gun, and walked to where it was lying about 100 yards away, and although I did not know it, the tiger was following me all the time. Suddenly, after I had got my gun, he appeared not six feet away from the side of me. He made one lunge, and I had no time to get my gun up to my shoulder, but just had to shoot anyhow, and was very lucky to get him in the shoulder. I had to finish him off after that. I did not like doing it, for it was the first wild animal I have killed."

QUEEN'S THEATRE.

"THE PRODIGAL"

Coloured singers, ranging from the Ethiopian Etude Chorus, noted Los Angeles singers of spirituals, to celebrities from the Apex and other Central Avenue night clubs, have their "break" in Lawrence Tibbett's new picture, "The Prodigal,"
which is showing at the Queen's Theatre.The coloured chorus appear in two numbers, one singing with Tibbett and the other in an ensemble number with Laura Smith,
night club and phonograph record
star, as a central figure.The coloured singers also appear in an elaborate plantation scene in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production. Their first number is "Childlike," composed by Herbert
Stothart, and in this Miss Smith, Stepin Fetchit, John Larson and Gertrude Howard, the "Mammy"
of "Hearts in Dixie," are featured as soloists and dancers.In the second number, Tibbett
sings "A Child Is Born," a negro spiritual by Stothart with the Ethiopian Etude Chorus.

"DANCE FOOLS, DANCE."

Cliff (Ukulele Ike) Edwards comments that his rôle in "Dance Fools, Dance," Joan Crawford's
new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle, reminds him of his early vaudeville appearances. "I die in the end," he explained.Henry Beaumont directed the new Crawford film which will come to the Queen's Theatre on Sunday.
It is a story of Chicago gangland
with Edwards playing the part of a reporter who is killed.Lester Vail is cast in the romantic lead, in the picturization of the original Aurania Rouverol story
and the supporting cast includes William Bakewell, William Holden,
Clark Gable, Earl Foxe, Purnell
B. Pratt, Natalie Moorhead, Hile
Hamilton, Joan Marsh and Russell
Hopton.

KING'S THEATRE.

"SEA LEGS."

Jack Oakie, star of Paramount's nautical comedy, "Sea Legs," is now showing at the King's Theatre.
Oakie, lightweight champion of the United States Navy, is shanghaied
into the fleet of Sainte Cassette, a mythical island republic, to take the place of a rich slacker,
O'Brien, who must serve his country to win a $2,000,000 inheritance.
Harry Green, Oakie's attorney,
concocts and carries out the scheme.
All of Oakie's shipmates, except Eugene Pallette, think he is O'Brien, and make life miserable
for the supposed slacker. Oakie and Pallette become pals, and Oakie takes an interest in an invention, a machine for rolling spaghetti, on which Pallette is working.KING'S THEATRE

with Lillian Roth and Harry Green
JACK OAKIE
IN
"Sea Legs"
A Paramount PictureThe captain of Oakie's ship has a bevy of beautiful daughters, the most decorative of whom is Lillian Roth. Oakie falls in love with her,
and as Lillian owns the town's only tea-room and Oakie finds his credit is good on the O'Brien
checking account, he wins love and friendship by buying pastry for his shipmates.Admiral O'Brien, grandfather of the man for whom Oakie is proxy,
comes aboard to see how his grandson is getting along. Oakie mistakes the admiral for a civilian
snoper, and throws him overboard.
The captain and the entire crew jump, as a man into the water to the rescue. To the surprise of everybody, including Oakie, the admiral compliments Oakie's vigilance.Oakie's real identity is exposed by a group of American sailors on a visiting battleship, and Oakie is suspected of having killed O'Brien and stolen his name to get his inheritance. He is cleared of these suspicions by a wire from the real O'Brien, saying he is coming to serve the remainder of his term.
Freed from service by this development, Oakie enlists voluntari-ly on the ship where his sweet-heart's father is in command, and his sweetheart, herself, is in high command. And, to add to his joy, Pallette's spaghetti roller rolls into
the money, making everything rosy.

"DISHONOURED."

Mariane Dietrich, Paramount's
new dramatic sensation, whose introduction to film audiences in
"Morocco" and "The Blue Angel"
was an overwhelming success, has taken rank with Hollywood's dar-
est stunt men and proved herself
a woman of highest courage.Without hesitation, she boarded an open plane for a night flight in a blinding fog for scenes in her latest picture, "Dishonoured," in which she is co-starred with Victor McLaglen, hero of "What Price Glory" and "The Cock-eyed World.""Dishonoured," which the King's Theatre will feature next, is the story of a woman spy in the Austrian service during war-time.
Miss Dietrich, as an embittered
woman impressed into the secret service, is so successful tracking down foreign spies in Vienna, that she is sent to Russia. Pursuing an evasive foreign agent, who mocks
her intelligence and lauds her beauty, she is drawn into a dilemma
in which she has to choose between love and duty. Her choice and the resulting action makes the smashing climax of the story."Dishonoured" is the third Von Stromberg picture to feature Miss Dietrich's talents, "Morocco" and
"The Blue Angel," both having been directed by him.ROMANCE OF A POLICEMAN.

PARIS CLAIM TO MILLIONS.

Paris. Standing in the Place de la Concorde is a traffic policeman whose romantic claim to be the heir of a South American millionaire is shortly to be discussed in the law courts. He is named Henri Munzer, and he wears a brassard showing that he is qualified as an interpreter in several languages.Until he was 18 years of age, Munzer lived in luxury, and believed that he was the son of a wealthy Argentinian. He was sent to Lausanne to complete his education, and was liberally supplied with funds by his step-father for his maintenance. Munzer had lost his first husband and had married again.
Then one day Mme. De Barros, called him into the drawing room
of her expensive Paris flat andsaid: "You are not my son. You must go, and I do not wish to see you any more." She added that he was really the son of a poor cobbler's wife who had died at Rio de Janeiro, and that she had adopted
him when his mother lay dying.

Foreign Legation.

The young man, having taken the name of Munzer, joined the Foreign Legion, and after completing his service he entered the Paris police force. Meanwhile the woman he had always regarded as his mother died, and left her entire fortune to pieces and nephews. Munzer claims that he really was her son, and that therefore he cannot be cut out of the inheritance.He has asked that the private papers of Mme. de Barros be placed under a judicial examination by a magistrate. For he is convinced that one of them will prove him
to be the rightful heir to the millionaire's estate.TO-DAY'S WIRELESS

PRICES REGISTER GENERAL INCREASE

BIG RISE IN FRESH FRUIT DURING SECOND QUARTER OF THE YEAR

FALL IN TEXTILE PRICES.

Hong Kong wholesale prices registered a general average increase of 0.4 per cent. in the June quarter of 1931 as compared with the March quarter, and 40.4 per cent. as compared with the base year of 1922, according to the index constructed by the Statistical Branch of the Imports and Exports Department.

Foodstuffs, metals and minerals groups showed slight increases, while textiles and miscellaneous groups recorded decreases, the figures, being as follows:—

	1922=100.	1st Qr.	2nd Qr.
Foodstuffs	144.1	147.3
Textiles	147.0	143.1
Metals
and Minerals	138.5	143.8
Miscellaneous	129.7	127.5
General average	139.8	140.4

The increase in the foodstuffs group was accounted for in part by the big jump in fresh fruit prices. During the quarter, considerably smaller quantities were received from the South China area at greatly increased prices, the index figure rising from 180.2 in April to 350.3 in May and 450.1 in June, giving an average of 342.0 as compared with 169.1 in the first quarter. Condensed milk fell from 201.7 in the first quarter to 185.0, remaining steady through the whole of the second quarter.

Following last year's trend, onions dropped from 177.9 to 139.2, the figure for the month of June falling as low as 88.5. Peanut oil reached 120.3 in April but average 116.2 as compared with 112.3. Potatoes jumped to 125.1 in April but steadily declined to average 114.1, the June figure being 100. Poultry averaged less at 170.3 but fluctuated from 153.6 in April to 211.5 in June. Both white and broken rice declined steadily from April, averaging 128.1 and 122.5, respectively, while raw sugar advanced one point. Dried and preserved vegetables continued their downward trend to 51.3, the lowest figure of 44.0 being recorded in April.

Fall in Textiles.

The slight fall in the textiles group is accounted for by decreases in dyed and plain cottons, Manila hemp, gunny bags, silk piece goods and flannels, all falling heavily in the third month of the quarter. Practically all items in this group declined in June as compared with April.

In the metals and minerals groups, coal advanced from 108.0 to 124.9, partly on account of shortage of supplies. Iron and steel bars, plates and nails all increased, while pig lead fell from 201.7 to 149.8. Tin advanced a few points.

Miscellaneous items showed a general decline of two points to 127.5. Cement rose to 73.7, the figures for the month of June, however, falling to 69.0. Charcoal fell to 44.7, a slight decrease as compared with the previous quarter. It should be noted when considering the low index figure for charcoal that supplies were very limited in the base period, owing to the extortions of bandit groups between the sources of supply in China and Hong Kong, thus forcing up prices to a great extent. Sole leather showed little change at 130.7, but the June figure fell to 121.8 from 137.7 in April. Sulphate of ammonia still further decline to 87.0.

Details of individual and group averages are given in the following tables:—

CHINA AND THE CINEMA.

PICTURE HOUSES IN REMOTE VILLAGES.

PLANS FOR MAKING CHINESE FILMS.

That film taking and film making is to be one of the biggest industries in the future industrial China is a statement advanced by a director of a newly inaugurated motion picture company at Canton, a company interested only in the making of Chinese pictures. No other country, in the opinion of our informant, has made more rapid strides in this new field of industry, although it is understood and realized that the means allowing China to march ahead in this direction are the paths already paved for her by other countries. But the Chinese people have taken to films as they have never taken to other entertainment, and although legitimate play-acting has still a big hold on the inhabitants of the country, it can be safely said that the drama of the screen will in time supersede the century old plays that have for ages been the only theatrical entertainment in China.

It is a fact that the majority of the larger villages in the interior now have their own picture palaces, the modern structure of which however does not enhance the beauty of the old world hamlets. But China is on the verge of an industrial era and slowly all the old villages are being demolished making room for modern settings.

Our informant tells of the surprise awaiting him when he lately visited his own home village, a little place in Kwangsi province. A large and very modern picture house had been erected and on his arrival a performance was in progress. The films being shown were of course old, but that they were understood and appreciated by the villagers is sufficient proof of what might be done towards making the film industry a paying concern in China. If Chinese people can and do appreciate foreign films, they will be much more interested in picture taken in and concerning their own country is the plea put forward. We said a moment ago that in time the cinema might supersede the producing of the old style plays of the country.

Chinese Film.

Nevertheless the people will still have them to look forward to to a certain extent as it is the hope of certain Chinese film companies to produce most of these plays on the screen. That they will be better productions goes without saying, inasmuch as the producers will be able to work with exterior settings, in some cases in the actual spot and setting where the story is supposed to have taken place centuries ago. It is hoped also to produce modernised versions of the old time plays. The film company with which our informant is connected is not new in the strictest sense of the term. It was really started and a going concern some three years ago, but it is only recently got on to its feet as a paying business. It has however already two interesting and profitable pictures to its credit. The company are now at work on a "talkie" at Canton. Most of the actors and actresses connected with the company are American trained, it is said, and evidence that they have profited by American methods was presented when the writer witnessed part of their latest film in the making. The scene depicted a young lady and gentleman disembarking from one of the river steamers. The acting was extremely realistic, and a casual observer not realizing that a film was being taken, would not have judged that these two people were other than ordinary passengers. Another member of the company, interviewed by the writer, intimated that advances had been made to Mr. E. H. Bokan, one of the best known Cantonese actors of the legitimate stage, and that a very substantial sum had been offered him in return for his taking a leading part in a forthcoming production. Mei Lang-fan has already made his film debut in America, and although he is the most famous of Chinese actors there is ample room for others to come forward and show what they can do to help the country in developing its own film industry.

HONG KONG HEAD MASTER ON MUI TSAI SYSTEM.

TRIBUTE TO HELPFUL ATTITUDE OF THE GOVERNMENT.

WHAT IS BEING DONE.

The following is an address—with certain additions—given by the Rev. W. T. Featherstone, M.A. Oxon, the Headmaster of the Diocesan Boys' School and Orphanage, Hong Kong, at a service held in the church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, Trafalgar Square, London on Thursday, June 23, 1931, in connection with the Annual Re-Union of the Victoria, Hong Kong and South China Diocesan Association, a report of which has already appeared in our columns.

DIFFICULTIES AND HOME CRITICISMS.

The Rev. W. T. Featherstone said:

It is my intention to speak this morning about the mui tsai, "little sister" or what has been called the Girl-Save question, and about some of the Church's work in Hong Kong.

The mui tsai system is one under which children have been adopted, bought and sold. Millions of people in China live continuously on the border line of starvation and death. The report of the International Famine Relief Commission of Peking (1929) said that all provinces had been afflicted by some sort of calamity. In eight provinces, for example, of a total population of 57,350,000, no less than 21,000,000 were said to be already dying of starvation and conditions were likely to be worse. The causes were economic distress, depression, banditry, militarism and natural calamities, the chief being the last.

The mui tsai system in many, if not in most cases, is the result of force of circumstances over which people have no control. Homes, asylums and orphanages sufficient in number, to which starving people could send their starving children cannot be provided; thus the system, in some cases, has protected children from suffering, prostitution or death by starvation. Let me remark now that I have stayed in and visited several Chinese houses, in various parts of the Far East, where mui tsai have been kept, and I can bear witness to the fact that many mui tsai are well and honourably brought up. Undoubtedly the system lends itself to terrible abuse. "Little girls are often bought as cheaply as cats. During a terrible famine it is reported that four thousand little girls were carried pack-saddle, twelve days' journey to a Capital City in China and sold" (See "Yunnan" by M. M. Dymond, Marshall Bros., Ltd., London).

Slavery is opposed to Christianity which must attack it as an enemy of humanity; this has been done, for example, for many years, by the Church in the British Colonies of Hong Kong and in other places in the Far East. With regard to Hong Kong we have, in recent years, heard much of this question in England and elsewhere. Let me state briefly or imply some of the difficulties.

In Kowloon and New Kowloon, which have an area of about four to five square miles on the mainland in the British Colony of Hong Kong, the population increased from 123,000 in 1921 to 262,000 in 1931. This, in itself, is a great tribute to British administration; and when the number of dialects and other matters are considered it is easy to appreciate the great difficulties which arise.

When there is trouble in Canton which is about ninety miles from Hong Kong, or in districts nearer to Hong Kong, it is nothing unusual for the population of Hong Kong to increase temporarily, in a few days, by sixty or even one hundred thousands of people. On one occasion the known increase was seventy thousands in four days; and this did not include very many thousands of unknown emigrants.

The book "Child Slavery in Hong Kong" gives an exaggerated and unfair description of conditions there, to readers who may not have a due sense of proportion. I am not aware that the writers who were in Hong Kong for two years only, in 1919-1920, visited the Church's institutions, which have existed since the early days of the colony.

In Christian England we still need the N.S.P.C.C. and similar societies; we also have such a society as the National Adoption Society for unwanted children.

It will perhaps help us to realise the difficulties in Hong Kong and China to-day if we remember that in England at the time of the Norman Conquest (1066) when Christianity was just beginning to make itself felt, the population has been roughly estimated at considerably less than one million people.

In China, although there have been earlier missions, it is only during the last century that continued effort has been possible, and the population to-day is approximately four hundred millions of people.

Legislation Not Sufficient.

In Hong Kong missionary and other Christian bodies have done much for the mui tsai in Churches, schools and orphanages and among the Chinese community; they have been strongly supported by the Chinese themselves.

Legislation alone will not solve the problem. Christian principles and a Christian standard of social life have been inculcated and have paved the way for reform and must provide the public opinion and moral force needed to support legislation. The attitude of the government officials has been sadly misrepresented. Missionaries can testify to the constant and practical help given in dealing with children. They, as much as any, have the true interests of the mui tsai at heart, they know of the difficulties to be overcome and few can understand who do not know the conditions in recent years" (Miss A. M. Pitts, M.B.E., in a view of the above mentioned book in the Church Missionary Outlook September 1930. Miss Pitts worked for twenty-four years in Hong Kong among women and children).

The agitation which has been stirred up in this matter is not fair to the Government, the Church or the Chinese. Publicity, no doubt, has done good, but the difficulties and work of people living and residing in Hong Kong and China must be realised.

In the Colonial Church definite work has been done in this matter since the eighteen sixties, as can be seen from "The History and Records of the Diocesan Boys' School and Orphanage 1869-1929" with references to an earlier institution called the Diocesan Native Female Training School founded in 1860 and published in 1930. The earlier institution failed in 1868, partly because, at that time, the Chinese did not want to send their children to the foreigner for education and partly for lack of funds. The School and Orphanage founded in 1869 for boys and girls of all nationalities is a Colonial Church of England School under a local committee and receives no financial help from England; there is now, also, a Diocesan Girls' School and Orphanage, founded in 1892 and 1900. At these schools wealthy Chinese are educated at full fees which are among the highest fees charged at schools in Hong Kong; English and Eurasian Orphans are educated free and at reduced fees. In recent years I have admitted Eurasian boys, who were to all intents and purposes slave boys, as well as many other destitute English and Eurasian children.

The Church Missionary Society, London, controls several large and small schools in Hong Kong, as well as in China, where Chinese of all classes and positions are educated. In 1887 the Victoria Home and Orphanage (Church Missionary Society) was founded in Hong Kong for mui tsai and other destitute Chinese girls. One of the first mui tsai to be received in 1887 was redeemed by English friends in Dorsetshire and she is now a teacher. Many are the cases that could be quoted.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE FUNCTIONS.

WHITE MESS JACKET FOR EVENING WEAR.

The following General Order has been published on the subject of evening dress to be worn by officers in the Government service during the summer months. His Excellency the Governor wishes it to be known that this dress may be worn at such functions by unofficial guests who may wish to wear it.

During the months May to October both inclusive, the following optional non-uniform evening dress may be worn by Government Officers when attending official dinners and similar functions at Government House:

- (1) White mess jacket.
- (2) Black tie.
- (3) White waist-coat, single breasted.
- (4) Black evening dress trousers.

Miniature medals and decorations may be worn with this dress.

A Chinese Opinion.

Mr. S. C. Yeung the Chairman of the Anti-Mui-Tsai Society in Hong Kong said on October 25, 1930 that:—

"The Society was inaugurated under the able direction of Mr. J. M. Wong on August 8, 1921, and the foresight of Mr. Wong is, therefore, to a large extent, responsible for the subsequent achievement of this society." Mr. Wong is an Old Boy of the Diocesan School, a member of its Committee and one of the leading members of the Church. The first English Secretary (1921-1929) of this Society, Mr. C. C. Anderson, and the present secretary, Mr. J. D. Bush, are Old Boys of the Diocesan School, and most of the members of the Committee of the Society are past and present members of various Christian schools and churches in Hong Kong.

The above is part of my answer to the latest pamphlet issued by certain people in which the Church is so unfairly mentioned. By no stretch of the imagination can they talk about "the negative attitude towards this question shown by the Church of England and its associated societies, with a few rare exceptions."

The position of the mui tsai in Hong Kong, from the legal point of view, is now:

- (1) No further mui tsai are to be taken into employment in the colony.
- (2) No mui tsai unless previously registered in the colony is to be brought into the colony.
- (3) Employers have no authority to keep a mui tsai if she wishes to leave.
- (4) Existing mui tsai have all to be registered.
- (5) Existing mui tsai are to be paid wages.

Criticism of Hong Kong.

Criticism of Hong Kong have been made in the House of Lords and in the House of Commons. The remarks of a Dean of the Church framed possibly in the comfort and quietness of some cathedral close, have been cabled out East; and an agitation has been stirred up amid the serene security and the salubrious surroundings of ancient Bath. This city has, for example, at least seventy places of worship and adult education for its seventy thousand inhabitants, in addition to the many church and government schools and other institutions.

Residents in Hong Kong, Chinese and English, and members of the Government and of the church particularly, have felt this matter very much indeed because references to the great and extraordinary difficulties—political, economic and natural—and to the excellent work of the government, the churches and of the Chinese themselves would appear to have been omitted. Moreover, an agitation, stirred up in such a way, is in great danger of increasing the difficulties of institutions and persons who are bearing the heat, the burden and the suffering of the day.

To people in England I say—"Come over and help us." Live and work in Hong Kong, or, better still, up-country. Do not be content with paying fleeting visits. And try to live on the meagre salaries paid at home and abroad to missionaries, or on those now being paid to Diocesan workers under the Colonial Church which, by force of circumstances, has to pay starting salaries in Hong Kong, at ten dollars to the pound sterling, when the pound costs twenty dollars and when the cost of living is so high. This matter of salaries is mentioned now chiefly because we must realise that there are economic difficulties in these affairs, as well as in the affairs of others, which are most difficult to surmount, and that there are many of our own people making sacrifices to-day in their work abroad.

GARRISON SCHOOL.

PRIZE-GIVING CELEBRATIONS.

A VERY SATISFACTORY REPORT.

To develop and cultivate a spirit of unselfishness and to show an interest in the welfare of others was the gist of the remarks of Colonel R. E. Skinner, O.B.E., when he presented the prizes at the annual prize giving of the Garrison School.

In the course of his report on the School, Captain Deakin, D.S.O., M.C., A.E.C., paid a tribute to the staff, who had done so much to contribute to the efficiency of the school and to the donors of prizes who had made it possible to give away so many valuable prizes.

The proceedings were opened by the senior children and infants, the former doing "Lullaby" (Brahms) and the youngsters, "In the Fashion" (A. J. Mine). Subsequent to the distribution of prizes, the seniors sang "Land of My Fathers," and before breaking up for vacation, rousing cheers were given for Col. Skinner and the staff.

Capt. Deakin's Report.

Captain Deakin, in presenting his report said:—During the year under review, there has been no change in the school staff, and much of the very satisfactory progress must be attributed to this fact. Warrant Officer Instructor, Class 1. (Education) A. E. Parsons, in charge of the Elder Children's School, and Q.A.S. Mrs. Ripley, in charge of the Infants School, and their respective staffs are to be congratulated on the excellent educational work carried out during the school year. The general tone and happy atmosphere of the school has been most marked, and can mainly be attributed to the patience and pleasant personalities of the teaching staff and similar virtues of the children themselves. Cleanliness and neatness of dress are outstanding characteristics of the children and reflect great credit on the parents. I regret that we shall, in the coming trouping season, lose the services of Mr. and Mrs. Parsons, Mrs. Ripley, Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Donelan, who are being transferred to the Home establishment. It is not easy to adequately express my gratitude to them all for the loyal way in which they have for three years carried out their duties and supported me in the administration of these Garrison Schools. The children join me in wishing them every success and happiness in their new stations at Home.

Parents Thanked.

The attendance for the year has been remarkable good, and in this respect I express my thanks to the parents on whom the attendance question mostly depends. The school has been entirely free of epidemics. The number of children attending are:—Army 80, Royal Naval Dockyard 10, Ex-soldiers and Civilians 29.

Of the eight scholarships at the Central British School, Kowloon, offered annually to children of the Garrison Schools by the Board of Education, 6 were taken up by this school in January last. The successful competitors were Jean Ripley, Robert Jones, Peter Wilson, Gilbert Budden, Gordon Willmott and Joseph Gecks and the Headmaster, Mr. G. Franklin Nightingale, reports very favourably on all these pupils.

The annual swimming sports will take place on September 15 next, when it is hoped that the contest for the championship honours will be as keen as last year. The splendid swimming ability of the children is due in a large measure to the facilities which exist at Stonecutters.

A large number of children belong to the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Wolf Cubs and Brownies organisation and carry out their work with enthusiasm.

An Appreciation.

On behalf of the children and staff I wish to thank Mrs. Scott Little, Miss Steele, Mrs. Bishop, Mr. W. Low and Bdm. Sturgeon, S. W. Borderers, who devote so much of their time to these activities. Further additions have been made to the school library from parents and friends of the school particularly from Mr. and Mrs. Green. Such gifts of suitable books are greatly appreciated by the children.

The large number of prizes to-day have been made possible by the generous contributions received from the various Naval and Military Officers, Units, Messes and Clubs, from H.M. Dockyard Officials and from the parents of civilian children attending the schools. In addition, the Hong Kong Board of Education and the individual members of the General Committee of the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce have generously contributed towards the prize fund. To all these I tender the sincere thanks of the staff and scholars.

SENT TO HOUSE OF DETENTION.

DESTITUTE BRITISH AND DUTCH SUBJECTS.

Edward Ellis, described as a British subject, and Yohanna, a native of the Dutch East Indies, were charged with vagrancy before Mr. E. H. Williams yesterday.

Ellis, it was stated, missed his ship, the Orduna, at Manila and arrived in Hong Kong by stowing away on the President Taft. He was not discovered, but on Tuesday he gave himself up to the police as a destitute.

It was stated that Yohanna came from Java several weeks ago, and had the intention of going to Amoy to learn to drive a motor car. He was found wandering in the streets. Both were committed to the House of Detention.

Before asking Colonel R. B. Skinner, O.B.E., to distribute the prizes, I wish to point out that this prize-giving is an occasion of pleasure for some children, and of necessity a matter of disappointment for others who have not been fortunate enough to be in the prize list. I can assure you that the staff exercises the greatest care in selecting the most deserving children for the award of prizes, taking into account not only the mental capacity of the children, but also their conduct in school, perseverance and application to school work generally.

In conclusion I desire on behalf of the staff and scholars to thank Colonel Skinner for consenting the present prizes, to thank the Commanding Officer, and the Officers of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps for the loan of this building and finally, all those who by their attendance to-day have shown their interest in the school.

HILL-STATION FOR HONG KONG.

Hong Kong with all its modern amenities has still something to learn from other places in the East. We refer especially to the present lack and ever-growing need of a summer resort or hill-station within reasonable distance of the city. There is no doubt that the summer in Hong Kong is one of the most trying in the world and should be avoided as far as possible at least by European women and children.

The trouble with Hong Kong is that it is hard to get away from, at least without heavy initial transportation expenses which few of us can afford these days. True, Canton and Macao can easily be reached, but climatic conditions there are similar to those in Hong Kong. Europeans in North China are more fortunate. There is Kuling, the hill-station for the Lower Yangtze and within fairly reasonable distance of Shanghai; even the many beautiful health resorts in Japan can be reached in a few days. In Java there are hill-stations within a few hours journey by car from the large towns, while Singapore has the newly laid out Cameron Highlands and Brastagi in Sumatra. Even Foochow, with its handful of foreign residents, chiefly missionaries, has a beautiful summer resort at Kuliang, up on the hills about a four-hour's journey by chair from the city. It is Kuliang on which we think a Hong Kong hill-station could be modelled; in fact local conditions are much more favourable than those which Foochow has so skillfully exploited.

The journey to Kuliang has to be made either by chair or "Shank's mare" over coolie paths across a dead-level plain to the foot of the mountain and then up the steep sides of the hill where innumerable shallow steps have been cut. When the top is reached the visitor seems to be in a new world. The temperature is that of a fine English summer, and the scenery with the wind sighing through the fir trees, and familiar home-side shrubs and flowers complete the picture. The resort is managed by a small committee elected by the community, and very well managed it is. The small houses of rough-hewn native stone with wide verandahs are dotted over the hill-tops and are connected by picturesque winding paths. There is a recreation club, tennis courts and swimming pool fed by mountain streams, but the greatest delight is the long walks throughout the beautiful and hilly country-side.

We see no reason why we in Hong Kong should not be similarly served. In considering possible sites, there are many that spring to mind, but notably Tai Mo Shan, Castle Peak or the hills around Shatin and Tai-po. Those fortunate few who live on the Peak have their own hill-station, which, on account of its restricted area, is closed to the great bulk of European residents to whom the laying-out of a summer resort in the New Territories would be an inestimable boon. As in the case of Kuliang, local women-folk and children could live during the very trying hot weather in beautiful surroundings and ideal weather, visited by their men-folk over the week-ends; in fact it might be possible for the latter to make daily visits by car to town.

The scheme is also, we think, a business proposition and similar enterprises in other parts of the East have done well financially. We submit the outlines of a scheme as worthy of consideration from a financial point of view.

ALL'S WELL UNDER THE RED LIGHT!

"Let all things be done decently and in order," says a certain writer of the first century, and if only a local Chinese family had realised that this maxim is strongly enforced by the Hong Kong Government, they would have been spared an expensive and humiliating appearance in the Police Court. The family in question was poor but honest. It was in debt and unlike many more exalted persons and Great Powers it had no intention either of avoiding its obligations, or even of declaring a moratorium.

Resolving itself into committee a decision was reached that, in order to raise the wind, the daughter of the house be sold into an ancient if not honourable profession. The resolution was carried unanimously, subject to one condition on the part of the principal. She insisted, presumably for the honour of her house, that she should pursue her new career away from her home and associates. But in transferring the scene of her activities to Macao she upset the apple cart. The whole party was arrested in the Portuguese Colony and sent back to Hong Kong.

Two members of the family were fined and the would-be devotee of Aphrodite now languishes under the vigilant guardianship of the Honourable the Secretary for Chinese Affairs. Presumably, her relatives, whose honesty is surely worthy of record in some pious ode, are now in Victoria Gaol, for the fines were heavy. No doubt they are cursing themselves for listening to the absurd preference of a young baggage for Macao over Hong Kong.

Perhaps they have learned, for future reference that the proper procedure would have been to have approached one of those affluent and important local ladies licensed to carry on this business. Surely one of them could have found room for this humble and conscientious recruit? The preliminary completed the young lady would have sought the Office of the Secretary for Chinese Affairs for her proper registration. We believe that there is a daily ration of these registrations, but no doubt patience, perseverance, civility and other virtues would have in due course secured the completion of the necessary formalities. At this simple form of wedding to Priapus a responsible official asks the bride if she gives her full consent, and tells her that she is under no compulsion to take up prostitution, and that if at any time she wants to leave she has only to come round and see him. Brides do not say "I won't," at the altar rails. Such a scandal has never occurred in recorded history. But at the B.O.A. young women are no doubt braver, and perhaps figures and facts as to the number of last-minute recalcitrants are available.

We can see what an excellent system prevails in Hong Kong. We may have brothels, but no girl enters unwillingly. We can sleep soundly in our beds with a final reflection that all is well under the red lights of Yau-ma-tei and Wanchai; that due punishment is meted out when "poor mamas" brothel-keepers, and any interested parties disobey the advice quoted at the beginning of this article.

First Prize!

"Black hens are cleverer than white ones, aren't they, mummy?" "Why, dear?" "Cos the black ones can lay white eggs, and the white ones can't lay black."

Not What He Meant.

There is a story told at Westminster of a very cautious and halting member of the present Government who wound up an evasive speech to a deputation by saying, "And there, gentlemen, is the door." The visitors were astounded at the apparent rudeness, but the Minister proceeded in his plodding way: "Aye, and you'll find it open any time you want to come and see me again."

A Great Salesman!

Mr. H. Willoughby Lovell, who has just retired on pension from the position of Admiralty Marshal, sold some £21,000,000 worth of ships and cargoes seized as prizes during the war. He went to the Admiralty Register in 1931 and served under seven Presidents of the Admiralty, Probate and Divorce Division—Sir Charles Butt, Lord St. Helier, Lord Gorell, Lord Mersey, Sir Samuel Evans, Lord Sterndale and Lord Merrivale.

General Booth's Grandson.

Mr. John Myron Booth-Tucker, a grandson of General Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army, is engaged to marry Miss Mercy Standish-Barry, the actress. Mr. Myron Booth-Tucker is in the 2nd Battalion The Queen's Own Royal West Kent Regiment. He is a son of the late Mr. Frederick St. George de Latour Booth-Tucker and the late Mrs. Booth-Tucker. Miss Standish-Barry has appeared on the stage a number of times, the last occasion being when she understudied Miss Annie Croft in the recent revival of "The Maid of the Mountains." Mrs. Standish-Barry told a reporter when interviewed: "My daughter and Mr. Booth-Tucker met when she was very young at the house of Mr. Douglas Sladen, the writer. He is a cousin of Mr. Booth-Tucker, who is at present serving on the Gold Coast." Miss Mercy Standish-Barry is a grand daughter of the late Major-General C. B. Lucie-Smith, and a grand niece of the late Viscount Southwell and the late Field-Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood, V.C.

A Post's House at Highgate.

Coleridge's pleasant house in the Grove, Highgate, is to have another literary tenant. Mr. J. B. Priestley went to see it and was so charmed by the unspoiled atmosphere of Coleridge's study that he decided to buy the place. Mrs. Priestley, who has a talent for that kind of thing, is now planning the necessary renovations and additions. Sir Neville and Lady Pearson (Miss Gladys Cooper) have the house next door, which they have discreetly modernised.

Slipper or Hair-brush.

I have been reading with interest and sometimes with delight a "silly season" correspondence on the place of corporal punishment in the education of girls, writes a London diarist. One ferocious parent advocates the frequent use of the slipper and the cane for girls between the ages of twelve and, eighteen. Another helpfully suggests that the back of a hair-brush, damped to make it sting more, is a pretty useful instrument. The majority is clearly opposed to these Spartan methods, but there is a substantial minority. Yet I have never heard of any young lady of my acquaintance being so much as slapped by her parents, at any rate after emergence from infancy.

Put ON Their Stride!

The exuberant Mr. George Lansbury, First Commissioner of Works, recently met in the House of Commons a deputation of teetotal members who protested to him against drink licences in the Royal parks. It was soon turned into a convivial gathering. A deputation to a Minister is usually a formal affair in the sanctuary of his private room. For Mr. Lansbury a large committee room was hired. Dry and wet members of Parliament assembled; there was a background of temperance propagandists from outside. Mr. Lansbury took complete charge of the deputation. He told them they could not all speak at once and he threatened to "go downstairs" if they did not follow custom. Then he clasped his hands behind his head and listened to the teetotal arguments with a quizzical smile on his face. As the speeches dragged on Mr. Lansbury became more and more shadowy in the clouds of tobacco smoke, a gesture which added the insult of nicotine to the injury of beer gardens.

★ Local Notes and Events ★

Mr. P. C. Solman, of Shanghai, and well-known in that port as an amateur actor, is on a business visit to the Colony. Mr. Colman is a uncle of the noted film star, Ronald Colman.

It has been reported to the police that two Chinese girls accidentally fell off a lighter, when they were fishing on No. 5 Pier at the Kowloon Wharf on Wednesday evening. They were not seen again.

Two blacksmiths received serious head injuries when they fell from a scaffolding at the new Jockey Club stables at Wongneichong yesterday. The men were removed to the hospital for treatment.

The case against Vasil Patecek, who was charged on Wednesday at the Kowloon Magistrate in connection with the jewel swindle at the Wai Kee jewellers shop, was again remanded yesterday, his second appearance.

A fine of $40 was imposed by Mr. Williams at the Central Police Court yesterday when a Chinese appeared on a charge of smuggling wine. It was stated that the wine was carried in two kerosene tins.

Another married woman attempted to commit suicide from a Yau-ma-tei ferry on Wednesday evening. She jumped off the "Man Shung" but was rescued by two of the ferry's crew and was removed to the Government Civil Hospital.

On Wednesday night a Chinese, employed by the Hong Kong Electric Company, fell from a height of 30 feet at the power station at North Point and received mortal injuries. He died shortly after being admitted to the Government Civil Hospital.

The case in which the Kwong Yat On firm were summoned for infringing the "Stag" trade mark applicable to soap, for which Messrs. Jensen & Co. are the local agents, concluded at Central Magistrate's Court yesterday. The defendants were fined $100 and ordered to pay $250 towards the complainant's costs.

A deaf mute was found guilty of the theft of two silver dollars and sentenced to three months' hard labour by Mr. Williams at the Central Police Court yesterday. The complainant told the court that while he was standing in a tram car he felt a pull on his coat and turned around and grabbed the defendant's hand.

The body of a woman who, committed suicide by jumping into the Sunchun River, was recovered at 1 p.m. on Wednesday. It will be recalled that Fung Tai, a farmer at a village at Lok Ma Chau, was informed by friends that her husband had seen his wife jump into the river and disappeared. The woman, it was stated, had been fretting a lot recently over the death of her four-year-old son.

Tilden Tour Profits.

The American Press has published the financial results of the Tilden Tennis Tour Company. During the present season 150,000 spectators have attended the tennis "circus." In New York the touring company netted 30,000 dollars, in Chicago 22,000, in Boston 18,000, in Los Angeles 14,000, in Denver 10,000. In two months Tilden himself is reported to have earned by playing, by film work, and by advertisement not less than 125,000 dollars. The figures are impressive. Perhaps they were meant to impress Wimbledon. And yet American opinion holds that the bottom is already out of the professional lawn tennis business. Most of us will be glad, however, that "Big Bill," who is a fine sportsman, has had his financial reward.

Cushions for Commissars.

A sense of humour, as everyone knows, is not the strong point of a Bolshevik—Russian or home-grown. A man who has been working in the frontier towns and villages of Poland, where Russian trains are constantly coming and going, described how the humourless Bolsheviks have abolished "class-distinction" on the railways. Passengers are not permitted to ask for a first, second, or any other class of ticket, as the rulers of the proletariat consider that, this savours too much of bourgeois snobbery. A 100 per cent. proletarian asks for a soft seat on a hard seat, according to the length of his purse, and, owing to the interesting distribution of ready cash in the Land of Equality, by a strange coincidence it is usually only the Commissars who can afford the softest cushions.

Modern Cellmates!

A vow of at least temporary celibacy was the outstanding feature of a new form of contract recently devised by an impresario of the pictures, who has made up his mind to put an end to the too-frequent dislocation of his schemes by marriage and giving-in-marriage. The young ladies whom he engaged signed the undertaking lightly. They were obsessed for the moment by professional zeal and ambition; their one thought was to become stars. But love gained the supremacy over ambition, in the case of one mademoiselle, and without consulting the impresario, she entered into the bond of matrimony. The film producer was so angry that, refusing to listen to the appeals of the bride, he embarked on an action to have her contract—that is, her contract with the "movies"—annulled. Counsel on behalf of the girl submitted that such a clause in a professional engagement was contrary to the public and national interest. In the end there was arranged a settlement out of court. Under this, while there is to be no attempt to untie the marriage knot, the lady undertakes to concentrate her thoughts on her role in the film.

From the files.

Looking Back 25 Years.

I am informed, writes our Canton correspondent, that Viceroy Shun is in receipt of a telegram, from the Waiwupu, saying that the British Minister in Peking has made representations regarding the prevalence of piracy on the West River, and cited the recent attack on foreigners. It is said that the dispatch enjoins the Viceroy to take prompt measures to secure the arrest of the pirates and to advise means for the wholesale extermination of these desperadoes.—Hong Kong Daily Press, July 31, 1906.

Looking Back 50 Years.

Ip Alun, coolie, was an opium smoker and would not work; he had to be supported by his wife. She had one dollar, out of which she paid fifty cents for rent, gave defendant thirty cents, and kept twenty cents for herself. Defendant was not satisfied and wanted more money, and upon being refused it he became angry, beat his wife with his fist, and took a fan-dagger, and cut her across the stomach. The wound had to be dressed at the hospital. The magistrate awarded him two months' hard labour.—Hong Kong Daily Press, July 31, 1881.

BANK OF ENGLAND
DISCOUNT RATE.*INCREASED TO FOUR AND A HALF PER CENT.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, July 30.
The Bank of England discount rate has been increased to four and a half per cent.

The advance in the bank rate did not come as a surprise in the City. Lombard Street was already prepared for it by bringing private rates as near to the official minimum as possible.

The abnormality of the Foreign Exchange position was unquestionably the deciding factor.

The Stock Exchange did not expect the advance and the result has been a change of sentiment regarding long credits, and as the political and financial outlook is uncertain it checks any enterprise.

BARONET BROKER

CONVERSION OF FUNDS.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, July 29.
While the case against Lord Kylsant and Mr. H. J. Morland is drawing to a close at the Old Bailey, another case in which a well-known figure is involved has opened at Leicester Police Court. This is Sir Arthur Wheeler, who was formerly the head of Messrs. Wheeler and Company, stock-brokers of Leicester, one of the largest firms of "outside" brokers in Great Britain.

Messrs. Wheeler and Company "crashed" some little time back, the failure causing a considerable sensation on the London Stock Exchange.

As a result of investigations into the affairs of the company, Sir Arthur Wheeler, together with his partner, George Victor Smith, appeared at Leicester Police Court today, facing twenty-six summonses alleging the fraudulent conversion of sums totalling £23,000.

RUGBY, July 30.
On his arrival last night from Berlin, after the longest flight he has yet undertaken and the first he has made out of Britain, the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, said that the work undertaken had been very successful. The meetings with German statesmen would still be carried on. Mr. MacDonald added that the first of several stages to go through would be marked by a report of banking experts, which was very important indeed. This report was called for by the recent London Conference, which recommended that the Bank for International Settlements should set up, without delay, a committee of representatives nominated by the Governors of the Central Banks interested to inquire into the immediate further credit of Germany, and to study the possibilities of converting a portion of short-term credits into long-term credits.

HEALTH INSURANCE

CONSIDERED NECESSARY.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, July 30.
In course of her reply for the Government in the debate on Health Insurance in the House of Commons, last night, Miss Susan Lawrence, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health, admitted that making all allowance for special circumstances, such as unemployment, growth of expenditure in benefits under the Health Insurance Scheme; it did not seem to be justified by the health of the nation.

There was a remarkable number of short illnesses and the increase of benefits paid to young men was unexpected. The position of the Central Fund was being anxiously discussed at the moment with approved societies and a levy on societies was one of the responsibilities under consideration.

Figures of the third valuation were coming out rather better than had been anticipated, but some of the societies would certainly have to cut their additional benefits. The Health Minister, Mr. Arthur Greenwood, added that he believed tighter administration will lead to considerable improvement. The number of claims during last quarter was the lowest for several years.

MINISTER.

(Wah Tse Tat Pao.)

CANTON, July 29.
In an interview with a Pressman, a spokesman of the Canton Finance Minister said, in referring to the question of the Canton Government's appropriation of Liangkwang's Customs surplus, that the Finance Ministry has not received an official message from Mr. Maze, Inspector-General of Maritime Customs, alleging the former's illegal detention of Customs funds. So far, however, the Canton National Government has only appropriated the Customs surplus and no interference with the funds assigned for meeting foreign obligations has been committed.

MR. MAZE'S POSITION NOT RECOGNISED.

[CENTRAL PRESS.]

CANTON, July 29.
Regarding the news which appeared yesterday's Hong Kong newspapers to the effect that Mr. F. W. Maze had telegraphed from Shanghai to the Canton authorities asking for sufficient remittance of Liangkwang Customs revenues to meet obligations secured on Customs, a representative of Central Press called on the Ministry of Finance and was received by Dr. P. C. Hsieh, Director of the Revenues Department.

Asked whether the Ministry had received Mr. Maze's note, Dr. Hsieh replied that so far the Ministry has not received any such official communication although Mr. Braud, Customs Commissioner at Canton, brought to him in person a copy of the message from Mr. Maze, who has not been appointed Inspector-General by the National Government.

Dr. Hsieh further said: "The Ministry authorized the Customs Houses in Liangkwang to pay out of the old 5 per cent. Customs duties only the following three items:

(a) Administrative Expenses of the Customs Houses in Liangkwang;

(b) Foreign Loan Services secured on Customs receipts;

(c) Customs quota of the Boxer Indemnities.

"The Ministry never authorized the Customs Houses in Liangkwang to pay domestic loan services out of the Customs Houses receipts. Any surplus of the old 5 per cent. after payments of the foregoing items should be remitted to the Ministry of Finance. The portion of the old 5 per cent. allotted to pay the Russian, German and Austrian Boxer Indemnities should also be remitted to the Ministry. As the figures in Mr. Maze's message to Mr. Braud are out of date, incomplete and not yet audited by the Ministry they cannot be considered."

"LION'S" TAIL UP!*NEW ZEALANDERS IN SORRY PLIGHT:
SEVEN MEN OUT CHEAPLY.*ALLEN IN DEADLY FORM; STARTLING SPELL AFTER LUNCH.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, July 29.
Sutcliffe and Duleep Singh, who were 70 and 77 runs, not out, respectively, when play was adjourned for tea, continued to play good cricket when play was resumed and the latter was the first to reach the hundred mark followed shortly by Sutcliffe. "Duleep" was very enterprising, and when he was 100 gave a chance—the only one during his superb innings—which was accepted by Weir at cover-point. He found the boundary on thirteen occasions and his partnership with Sutcliffe, extending over 130 minutes, realised 178 runs. The score board was 282-2-100 when Hammond joined Sutcliffe.

Soon after Hammond came in, Sutcliffe, in playing forward to Vivian, dragged his foot over the line, and snapping up the opportunity, James wiped the balls off, the umpire upholding the stumper's appeal to send "Herbert" back with 117 to his credit—the result of a chanceless though somewhat slow innings. Sutcliffe was at the wickets for four hours during which time he hit ten fours.

Leslie Ames, England's wicket-keeper, joined Hammond, and they played out time, the latter being 35 not out while Ames was also undefeated with 9 to his credit. "Mr. Extras" contributed a couple to bring England's score for the day up to 312 for 3.

JAMES "KEEPS" EXCELLENTLY.

LONDON, July 30.

There were only 2,000 people present when the second day of the Test opened in unsettled weather. The wicket was slow and easy and Hammond and Ames, the overnight not outs, settled down to play confidently right from the start. When they brought the total to 401 Ames touched one of Vivian's on the shoulder of his bat, James accepting a difficult catch amidst much applause. Ames had collected 41 runs in fine style. His partnership with Hammond for the fourth wicket added 130 runs in 85 minutes.

Jardine, England's captain, was given a great ovation as he walked out to join Hammond who by this time was treating the spectators to some sparkling cricket. He completed his century to the delight of his supporters who cheered him loudly and at 310, Jardine declared the innings closed. Hammond was not out for 100 while Jardine had 7, also not out. The fact that extras only totalled 2 speaks volumes for the way in James "kept." He was excellent.

NEW ZEALAND START BADLY.

Mills, the dashing left-handed bat, and Weir, opened the innings for New Zealand, and after they gave promise of a profitable partnership, Mills let one from Allen get past his guard and was sent back to the pavilion, the score board reading 42-1-27. Blunt joined Weir but further trouble was in store for New Zealand as two runs later the new-comer was smartly taken by Ames behind the sticks off Allen for only two runs. New Zealand's score stood at 44 for 2 when the lunch interval arrived, Weir being 13 not out.

The pavilion critics and spectators were provided with plenty of thrills by George Allen, the Middlesex amateur, who in an amazing spell with the ball took 4 wickets for 4 runs. Prior to the lunch interval, Allen had taken both wickets that fell but after the stop he got three more victims, his figures at one time being 7-4-4-1.

Weir was 13 not out when play was adjourned for lunch and 13 proved to be his unlucky number indeed for he was clean-bowled by Allen almost immediately after play was resumed without adding to his score. The total now stood at 45 for 3 and eight runs later Allen got another wicket, Vivian giving Ames a catch behind the sticks—53-4-3. Page—who joined Vivian after Weir was out—and Lowry brought the total to 92 when the former was caught by Peebles off Tate for 12 runs.

Lowry, with grim determination written all over his face, and Kerr stopped the rot for a time and they were warmly applauded when they sent the hundred up, followed later by sending the 100 up on the board. Their partnership was brought to an end, however, at 157 when Kerr was caught by Ames off Allen for 34 runs. The New Zealand captain had, in the meantime, passed his half-century, and with James he carried the score to 167 when he mistimed one off Brown and paid the full penalty, Jardine bringing off a good catch. James, not out for 3, and "Mr. Extras" (11) helped to bring the score to 167 for 7 when ten interval arrived.

The scores, up till then, were:—

SOUTH CHINA XI. DISAPPOINTS.

DRAW WITH SERVICES IN SINGAPORE.

THREE PENALTIES IN POOR GAME.

The South China tourists, who have had such a successful time in Java, failed to impress at the Anson Road Stadium against the United Services, says the Straits Times, and a game that was productive of little good football ended in a draw. That this result was fair to both sides is about the only comment one can make, but the tourists are not able to congratulate themselves on sharing the honours, but rather the bad finishing of the Services' forwards.

In the second half the Services had practically all the play, the tourists' attack fizzling out to rare breakaways. During this period the South China team fell very much below expectations, and just packed their goal, kicking out wildly anywhere as long as away from their charge. The Services had innumerable chances of scoring, many of which were really easy openings, but the whole of the forward line seemed incapable of sending the ball anywhere near the goal.

Probably one of the main reasons of the scrappy nature of the game was the manner in which it was controlled by the referee. It was a case of too much whistle throughout, both sides being penalised for the slightest technical infringements, and, in many cases, for tackles, which, from the stand, appeared perfectly legitimate. This latter was the case in all three penalties where it was obvious if there was a slight infringement that it was not intentional. The frequent stoppages, of course, did not tend to add to the interest.

Services' Good Defence.

The main strength of the Services lay in their defence, and particularly in their halves, who were well led by Middleton. Galley, though unorthodox, was very effective, and worked tirelessly throughout. The backs defended well after they had settled down, which was not really until the second half. The forwards as a whole were poor. It was unfortunate that Lieut. Bryan could not turn out, on account of an injury on Saturday while playing cricket, because he might have added a little punch to the side. As it was, Evans, at outside left, was the pick of the bunch, but he showed too great a tendency to shoot where a centre might have been more useful.

South China must have had a bad off-day, for the few flashes of brilliance that they showed were more individual than combined, and here again selfishness for the sake of spectacularism frequently spoiled even these efforts. One thing about the demeanour of the whole eleven players was their ill-concealed conceit. Throughout they adopted the "look-how-clever-we-are" attitude, but this received a rude shock when it met the rough-and-ready tactics of the soldiers, who, although they tackled vigorously, were scrupulously clean.

If the team was the tourists' best, and swamped 13 out of 14 of the pick of the D.E.I. sides, well, any of the four leading teams in the S.A.F.A. League (First Division) would be a "wow" over there.

The visitors' left-back was their best, and was about the only one who played team football. The centre-half had one foot, and although he sent out some beautiful swinging passes, it was nearly always to the left winger that they went.

The other halves depended on their own efforts and very rarely used combined methods. The forwards showed occasional flashes of brilliance, but, as aforesaid, it was mostly individualism. At times they moved well together, and the leader distributed the ball with swinging passes. He hurt a muscle just before the interval, but this did not appear to handicap him to a great extent.

A Sensational Start.

The game started off sensationally, and after two minutes, play the visitors took the lead. A good movement on the left saw a corner forced. The ball was cleared, but Wing Chiu lobbed it back into the goal mouth. Ellis jumped too soon in his effort to clear, and Fung nodded the ball into the untended net. The Services, stung by this reverse, immediately took up the offensive, and within four minutes brought the scores level. The Services progressed on the right, and Perry centred. Yin Chan, who had run across, missed the ball, which Evans neatly tipped past the goal-keeper.

With two goals within the first six minutes one wondered what was going to happen before the end, but the early promise of an interesting game was not fulfilled. The Chinese advanced well on several occasions, but their movements were usually nullified in their efforts to do things spectacularly. Once Fung broke through and neatly passed Bryant, but, with only Ellis to beat, shot wildly wide. Ip Pak Wah broke away on the left, and was well stopped by Galley, but, for some reason entirely obscure from the stand the referee pointed to the penalty spot. Wing Tak was deputed to take the kick, but he sent in only a tame shot. So tame was the effort that Ellis was taken by surprise, and had difficulty in getting rid of the ball, eventually having to concede a corner which was easily cleared.

Many Chances to Score.

Although the standard of play was not very high, there were several exciting moments in both goal mouths, but in spite of the fact that both sets of forwards had numerous opportunities they wasted them by weak finishing. Ellis had more work to do than Ka Leung, but managed to get through it with safety, although at times he did not pick up too cleanly. About 32 minutes from the interval the Chinese took the lead for the second time. It came similarly to the first goal, a centre from the left being badly misjudged by Ellis, who fell after jumping up to punch away, and the ball went to Fung, who once more headed it into the

AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

ALL LOCAL CLUBS TO PARTICIPATE.

TO BE PLAYED AT FANLING.

It is proposed to run an Amateur Championship of the members of the various Clubs of the Colony under the auspices of the Royal Hong Kong Golf Club in November of this year. This competition is not open to anyone who may be passing through Hong Kong or only temporarily resident in the Colony. It is intended as a Championship for members of local clubs, and the idea is to ensure, as far as possible, that competitors have at least six months' residence in the Colony, and can be termed residents in the true sense of the word.

The conditions fixed by the promoting Club are necessarily of an experimental or tentative nature in the first year of the competition, and may, if the competition is continued, be altered in future years.

The congestion of the courses at Fanling in November is so great that limiting the number of entrants from clubs others than the promoting Club is necessary.

Four Players From Each Club.

It is intended to ask all Clubs other than the R.H.K.G.C. to nominate not more than four players to take part; such players to be selected by the committees of the Clubs concerned.

The entrance fee for the competition will be two dollars and non-members of the R.H.K.G.C. will be allowed to practice on the Fanling Courses on any day except Saturdays, Sundays and public Holidays in the fortnight immediately preceding the Championship.

To assist members from other Clubs in the matter of local rules and customs and in order to give players the opportunity of playing with members of the promoting Club, it is intended to seed the draw to the extent that each visitor will play with a member of the Home Club.

The competition will be held on November 22, and entries will probably close on November 8. Fuller particulars are being circulated to all local Golf Club in due course.

empty goal. The Services attacked vigorously up to the interval, but their inside forwards finished weakly, and half-time arrived without further addition to the score.

From the interval onwards the Services had practically all the game, their defence having full got the measure of the visiting forwards, whose attacks resolved into rare breakaways. In these it was usually Pak Wah, the outside-left, who was given the chance of going through, and he was repeatedly offside. After the half had been in progress for eight minutes, Pak Wah got a third goal. The centre-half swung the ball right down the wing, and gathering it nicely ran to within three yards of Ellis before putting the ball into the net; Ellis certainly making a mistake in not going out to meet him.

Again the Services took up the offensive, and the visiting defence got more worried as time went on, they being very hard pressed. However, in spite of the many chances that came the way of the local forwards, they threw them away by erratic finishing, and lack of ball control. Then came the second penalty, but for what infringement of the laws it was impossible to see from the stand. Galley scored from the spot. Again the Services dominated, and again, when Galley was going through, a penalty was awarded, and Galley equalised. The game then fizzled out, and the final whistle went with the score three-all. The Chinese had just forced a corner, and might have got the winning goal.

Mr. J. R. Dargue refereed, and the teams lined up as follows:

South China XI: Wong Ka Leung; Lee Tin Sang and Tam Kung Pak; Leung Yin Chan; Wong Moo Shun and Leung Wing Chiu; Tong Kwang Chiu; Kwok Luen; Tang King Cheong; Leung Wing Tak and Ip Pak Wah.

United Services: Ellis (R.A.F.); Dicks and Bryant (Gloucesters); Shadlock (G.); Middleton (R.A.F.); and Galley (R.E.); Perry (G.); Reynolds (G.); Jukes (G.); Eye (R.A.) and Evans (R.A.F.).

THE GIRL WHO WORE TROUSERS

AND LOST HER JOB.

Because she went to a dance wearing trousers instead of a skirt, Miss Yvonne Henry, of Haywards Heath (Sussex), lost her job in a chemist's shop.

But she found another almost immediately.

Before Miss Henry started a fortnight's holiday the chemist, pleased with her work, gave her an increase in salary.

One evening during her holiday she went to a dance at a Brighton hall with her fiancé, wearing a chiffon novelty dress like a beach pyjama suit.

The costume attracted so much attention that a newspaper described it and also printed Miss Henry's name and address.

The Note.

Miss Henry was delighted, but the chemist happened to see the newspaper report and he wrote her a note in which, according to her mother, he said that her appearance in public wearing trousers offended against his religious principles, and her services would no longer be required.

"I was amazed," Mrs. Henry said to a reporter, "when Yvonne told me about the note from her employer, who is an extremely nice man. Everyone else laughed about the costume and thought it was a good idea for summer dancing."

The chemist was not at home and the only comment his wife made was: "I think every young woman and girl ought to keep in her proper place."

PRICE OF RICE.

BIG INCREASE DUE TO FLOODS.

[CENTRAL PRESS.]

Canton, July 29.

The prices of native rice have soared amazingly during the last few days due to the recent floods in the interior districts. The quotation for imported rice, Siam and Annam, also rose from twenty to thirty-five cents per picul.

Annam rice meets with greatest demand in the market and its price remains firm compared with the prices of other imported rice of the same quality.

On the contrary, the quotation for the Siam rice rises incessantly. It has almost reached the highest point by increasing forty cents per picul for the best quality of this cereal.

According to reliable information four large vessels loaded with rice from Annam and one from Siam are now on their way to Hong Kong and are expected to arrive in Hong Kong within three or four days.

The general quotation is expected to fall to normalcy upon the arrival of these five shipments of rice.

When the Prime Minister arrived from Berlin last night, he immediately despatched a telegram to Mr. Lloyd George expressing pleasure at hearing the good news of the successful operation and conveying his best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Before undergoing the operation Mr. Lloyd George dictated to his daughter a message to the Liberal Summer School, which will open at Cambridge to-day, and at which she will take his place.

EUROPEAN ON GRAVE CHARGE.

ALLEGED FORGERY IN SINGAPORE.

SEQUEL TO DEALINGS WITH NAVAL BASE.

Alleged to have committed forgery and misappropriated a sum of $424.00, Frank Bullen, an Englishman who was arrested on a warrant a few weeks ago, was before Mr. J. F. E. Gregg, the Singapore Third Police Magistrate, when the preliminary inquiry into the charges was begun and adjourned.

Bullen was represented by Mr. A. V. L. Davies and the complainant, a young Chinese named Tan Cheng Chuan, was represented by Mr. C. P. Burke.

It is alleged by the prosecution that Tan Cheng Chuan was the proprietor of a business under the style of the Straits General Supplier and the case arose out of dealings with Sir John Jackson (Singapore) Ltd., contractors to the Naval Base at Seletar.

On February 25 of this year the complainant sold and delivered to Sir John Jackson Ltd., certain goods to the value of $424.00 and subsequently, following requests for payment, Bullen was given a cheque for the amount. Bullen is alleged to have endorsed the cheque as proprietor of the Straits General Supplier and drawn the money.

He was not a partner of the Straits General Supplier and had no authority to sign or endorse cheques on its behalf. It is alleged that Bullen obtained payment and converted the money to his own use.

Money Not Yet Paid.

Bullen, according to the prosecution, was at that time the tenant of two houses belonging to a relative of the complainant. In May the complainant received a letter from Sir John Jackson Ltd., asking for the receipt for $424.00 and he made several attempts to communicate with Bullen without success. Up to the present the money had not been paid to the complainant and Bullen is now charged with forgery of the endorsement on the cheque; alternatively using as genuine a forged document; alternatively dishonestly misappropriating or converting the money to his own use; and alternatively being entrusted with a cheque for $424.00 and dishonestly misappropriating or converting the same to his own use.

Burke said that the accused entered into a lease in respect of 32 and 34 Cairnhill Road for a year at a total monthly rental of $335. On September 29 Bullen mortgaged his furniture to a chetty and by January, this year a considerable sum by way of rent was owing to the complainant who was the attorney for the owner of the houses. Bullen signed a document promising many things, including the payment of the sum due on house rent by monthly instalments. In January the accused was engaged in obtaining orders for goods from Sir John Jackson (Singapore) Ltd., in the name of the Union Syndicate.

Cheque Endorsed.

At about this time the complainant was pressing for the money due on house rent and the accused told him that he was the buying agent for Sir John Jackson Ltd., and doing good business and suggested that the complainant should start a business for supplying goods. The name of the Union Syndicate, Mr. Burke said, was only a convenient name for Bullen's business and the complainant, who was the son of a wealthy man, started the business of the Straits General Supplier as sole proprietor. Orders were subsequently obtained and a cheque for the amount mentioned in the charges was received by Bullen and was not accounted for.

Evidence was given by Mr. A. T. McCartney, sub-accountant of the P. and O. Banking Corporation, to the effect that Bullen came to the bank and presented a cheque which he had endorsed. The cheque was drawn in favour of the Straits General Supplier and witness sent it back to Bullen, who was still there, as it was irregular. Bullen then added "proprietor Straits General Supplier." There was no account with the bank in the name of the Straits General Supplier but only in the name of Frank Bullen.

Annamalai Chetty, of 84 Market Street, next deposed that Bullen mortgaged the furniture at his house in Cairnhill Road to him for $300 and the bill of sale was signed by him and his sister. The notice calling for payment was received and signed by Bullen's wife on his behalf.

The evidence of Mr. R. F. Mills, accountant to Sir John Jackson Ltd., Seletar, was next recorded and the hearing was adjourned.

MOTORIST'S 250 FT. CLIFF FALL.

INTO A GORGE.

Passengers returning from Cardiff to Bristol by steamer in the early hours of the morning were startled to see the headlights of a motor car appear on the top of Clifton Rocks, near the Suspension Bridge, and the car go hurtling 250 feet to the ground below.

Following the crash there was a loud explosion.

The vessel's wireless operator prepared to send out a call, but the shouts of the passengers were heard by two homeless men, and these fetched the police.

In the wreckage of the car was found the body of a man, in evening dress, later identified as Mr. Edward L. Hudson (29), of Miles-road, Clifton.

His throat was cut, it is believed, by the broken windshield.

A mysterious feature of the accident is that the car must have travelled over more than 90 feet of turf before smashing through the iron railings and some bushes at the cliff top.

GERMAN SHIPPING.

TOO MANY VESSELS BUILT ON SUBSIDIES.

Herr Holm, first president of the German Nautical Union, in a review of the present position of German shipping, said that the situation had scarcely at any time in the past been so bad. The subsidies paid to shipping firms in many countries had contributed to the building of too many vessels, for which there were no cargoes on account of the present world crisis. It is not yet recognised in many places that all nations are but parts of one machine, and the general desire seemed to be to cut off one's own country from the others and to make the exchange of each other's goods difficult.

It was a matter of extreme regret, he continued, that in German Parliament the importance of the German mercantile marine for Germany's trade was not recognised, or, at least, did not meet with due appreciation. Though German shipping companies, in contrast with those of other nations with whom they stood in competition, did not claim direct financial support, they must insist at least that their interests should not become a shuttlecock in party politics. Both the Government and the Cabinet should bear in mind the necessity of treating matters connected with shipping with the greatest care, and not interfere under the pressure exercised by party politics in matters which up to now had been in competent hands.

THREE-DECKER FERRY BOAT.

MERSEY CONTRACT.

Liverpool.—A super-ferryboat is to be built at Govan by Harland and Wolff, Ltd., for the Wallasey Corporation. This new twin-screw boat will cost £23,290, toward which it is expected that a grant of £10,000 will be received from the Unemployed Grants Committee. For the first time a Mersey ferryboat will have a third deck, and the top deck will be used as a sun promenade deck. The new boat will have accommodation for 2,500 people, of which four hundred will be able to walk round the sun deck. The tonnage will be 350 tons, and the speed twelve knots.
